

Capabilities Overview

Lue & Perez supports serious B2B buyers sourcing, consolidating, packaging, documenting, and moving Caribbean food products into export markets with stronger commercial and operating clarity.

Who We Support

- Importers and distributors building repeat Caribbean food programs
- Retail and foodservice buyers balancing launch, replenishment, and compliance needs
- Private-label teams needing sourcing, packaging, and export-readiness support

Core Capabilities

- Supplier sourcing and commercial fit review
- Multi-supplier consolidation and shipment readiness planning
- Export logistics, documentation, cold-chain, and freight coordination
- Co-packing, private label, and packaging-readiness support

Markets and Product Handling

- North America, UK/EU, Middle East, and CARICOM lanes
- Ambient, chilled, and frozen operating models
- Destination-market labeling, documentation, and execution considerations

What Buyers Usually Need Help With

- Testing whether supplier, MOQ, packaging, and market fit actually align
- Reducing fragmentation across sourcing, export paperwork, and freight handoffs
- Protecting shelf-life, cold-chain integrity, and commercial usability at destination
- Moving private-label concepts into production-ready, export-ready programs

How Engagements Usually Start

- Destination market, product scope, target volume, and launch timing are reviewed first
- Commercial fit, export readiness, and operating risks are assessed before quoting next steps
- Qualified B2B inquiries typically receive a response within two business days
